

RESOURCES

Social Studies

Center for Civic Education. (1994). National standards for civics and government. California: Center for Civic Education.

National Standards for Civics and Government, developed by the Center for Civic Education with support from the U.S. Department of Education and The Pew Charitable Trusts, identify what students should know and be able to do in the fields of civics & government when they complete grades 4, 8, & 12.

Center for Civic Education. (2009). National standards for civics and government. Retrieved from http://www.civiced.org/index.php?page=stds\_preface.

National Standards used in the creation of the 2010 North Carolina Social Studies Essential Standards.

Council for Economic Education. (1997). Voluntary national content standards in economics. New York: Council for Economic Education.

The purpose of the Voluntary National Content Standards in Economics is to help raise the quality of economic education in America's schools. Standards in economics are for students entering a complex global economy, so that they may fully and effectively participate in it.

Council for Economic Education. (2010). Voluntary national content standards in economics. New York: Council for Economic Education.

The revised Voluntary National Content Standards in Economics are a tool for educators, specifying what students, Kindergarten through grade 12, should learn about basic economics and the economy as they go through school, so that they will be better-informed workers, consumers and producers, savers and investors, and most important, citizens.

Council for Economic Education, (2010). Voluntary national content standards in economics, 2nd edition. Retrieved from <http://www.councilforeconed.org/ea/standards/standards.pdf>.

National Standards used in the creation of the 2010 North Carolina Social Studies Essential Standards.